The same is true of a four-room unit. The five-room unit is the smallest individual house that should be built. The six-room house is the best isolated individual unit. 8.--The workingman must pay the price that is necessary for a decent home, and the wage must be sufficient to allow the payment for a decent, economical home. 9.--The large amount of money necessary to support a home-building program demands that the funds shall come from the people who work, and in small units. 10.--The money will be obtained more cheaply directly from the people than from any other source. The demands from the people for use of their money are two: Safety of investment and liquid character of investment. 11.--Cities grow in proportion to the number of families that are satisfied and not in proportion to the birth rate. Rapidly...
